

Upper Hunter Shire Business Development Officer

Sean Constable has a small business background with an agricultural consulting business that has been going since 2001. He has also been employed with the NSW Department of Primary Industry as a regional economist. Sean has been employed with Council since 2006 as the Business Development Officer.

His role includes:

- Supporting local business organisations such as Chambers of Commerce within the towns of the Upper Hunter Shire Council;
- Coordinating and conducting projects that assist local businesses and the regional economy such as:
 - Township Marketing Plans
 - Investment Prospectus
 - Shop local programs
 - Development of industry clusters
 - Infrastructure development
- Encouraging new business development through promotion of the shire and the identification of gaps in industry and infrastructure;
- Coordinating Council residential and industrial land releases to meet demand;
- Referring business to the appropriate support agencies when required;
- Identifying appropriate State and Federal Government funding programs; and
- Assisting businesses when making application to Council to reduce processing times and ensure compliance.

Sean can be contacted at the Scone office of the Upper Hunter Shire Council.
